

String quartet The IncrediBows – George Li, Eric Kim, Holly Shelton and Haydn Li – with Di Jameson Family Foundation founder Di Jameson. Picture: Liam Kidston

Teens pull right strings for success

Mike Gambaro

A group of Brisbane teenagers is tuning up for a major moment on the global stage after securing a spot at one of the world's leading chamber music festivals.

Fresh off winning the prestigious Musica Viva Strike

A Chord national competition, string quartet The IncrediBows will go to Cairns in July for the Australian Festival of Chamber Music's elite Pathways Program.

The opportunity is backed by the new Di Jameson Family Foundation, whose founder Ms Jameson said: "We know Australia produces world-class musical talent, but too often young artists don't get the opportunities they need to truly develop. This is about backing that talent early, giving them access to the kind of mentoring and experience that can genuinely change the trajectory of their careers."